

Sound LIFESTYLE

Bash 2512 gets out with A-B-C

THE crew of Variety WA Bash Car 2512 have joined the Act-Belong-Commit campaign to promote the message of “getting involved” in order to stay healthy.

The car is themed Santa’s Workshop and is used to raise much-needed funds for charities.

Mac “Business Elf” McCaskey said he wanted to help support the Act-Belong-Commit campaign by displaying promotional stickers on the car.

“Being based in Rockingham and fast becoming known for our community involvement, we want to work together to a common goal in spreading the word,” he said.

“It was also very heart warming to see like-minded not-for-profit groups like Rotary and Key Assets come on board to assist us in our endeavours.”

The “elves” — Denny Ackerly, Andrew Guy, Mac McCaskey and Rosie O’Neill — held a special Christmas in July event in Bibra Lake last month to support Variety WA the Children Charity, and the Royal Flying Doctors Service.

Rockingham City Council health promotion officer Jessica Diggins said Mac and his crew were a great example of Act-Belong-Commit in action.

“They’re being physically and socially active out in the community, belonging to a group and committing to a cause by raising funds for those in need,” she said.

For more information visit www.actbelongcommit.org.au

Two Variety WA Bash Car 2512 crew members, Mac McCaskey and Rosie O’Neill, help spread the word about the Act-Belong-Commit campaign.